THE COAL SITUATION.

Probably Not Three Cars
In the City Yesterday.

WHAT YOU GOING TO DO?

A Few Animadversions And Remedies Suggested
By Outsiders.

We have no desire to be sensational or get up a scare on the supply of coal, but we have been on the edge of a coal famine more than once since cold weather came on. Yesterday we asked one of the largest handlers of coal in the city as to the situation and he said that he doubted if there were three cars of coal in the yards in the city.

This certainly looks serious at the first glance, and it may yet turn out that those who have not already laid in enough coal to last some time may be "left out in the cold" before bitter winter weather comes to stay awhile.

The first question naturally is: Whose fault is it? With the recent advance in price staring the consumer in the face, with a probability that it may not always be obtained at any price, the thinking man seeks a remedy for both price and supply. Whispers are heard that he ought to be the purchaser of some of the coal lands that are being cobbled up by different corporations and that a company ought to be formed and build an electric line to the mines.

Everybody is growing at the high price, and it looks pretty tough that coal cannot be handled here at a much lower price, as we are so close to the mines.

As to the cause of the price being at the present figure, wise ones have figured it out, but as to their theories being correct we cannot say. Some say that the railroad companies cannot furnish cars enough—others that they will not—another that the mine owners just want more money for their output, while coal dealers occasionally get their share of the blame, with the opinion tacked on that they are the ones to be benefited by the advance.

We know there is nothing in the latter assertion and have our doubts about the others, but the conditions remain and have to be met. How it is to be done ought to be decided on, and that right soon. The city is liable to be up against a condition some cold morning when least expected, and ought to be in some measure prepared. Enough wood could not be had; everybody can't burn gas; coal oil stoves won't do—and there you are. "Keep cool!" you won't have much trouble.

New Pastor Comes To Day

REV. MILLARD A. JENKINS.

Rev. Millard A. Jenkins, the new pastor of the Baptist church, will arrive to-day or to-morrow to enter upon his duties.

The Atlanta Journal of Sunday contained this sketch of him:

CLASSED WITH DIXON AND OTHERS.

"Rev. Millard A. Jenkins, who recently resigned as pastor of the Dublin Baptist church, has accepted a call to the First Baptist church of Hopkinsville, Ky.

Although only thirty-three years of age, Mr. Jenkins is one of the most popular ministers of Middle Georgia. He is a native of North Carolina, the state that has produced a number of prominent Baptist ministers, such as the Dixons, the Broughtons, the Truettis.

He was educated at Sand Hill Academy, Judson and Wake Forest Colleges, all of that state. He has traveled extensively, practically all over the United States and through some twenty foreign countries of the world.

STUDENT OF MEN.

He has been a student of men more than of books, and preaches a practical gospel rather than a gospel of theory. He has been pastor of the First Baptist church of Waynesville, N. C.; Tattall Square Baptist church, the University church, of Macon, Ga.; East Side church, Macon, Ga.; the First Baptist church at Dublin, Ga., where he has served five and a half years. At all of these churches the growth was marked. During the Dublin pastorate some four hundred were received into the church.

Quite often he has been called to the platform and his lectures, "The Builders," "Smiles and Wrinkles," "Reconstructed Paradise" and "The Dreamers," have won for him the highest praise.

He has been offered platform work, but would not make any contract with bureaus that would interfere with his pulpit work.

HAS EVANGELISTIC GIFTS.

His evangelistic gifts have called him as far West as the Rockies and as far North as New York city, while he has conducted meetings in some of the largest churches in the South.

Recently after closing a series of meetings in New York City, he was notified of unanimous call to Brantly Baptist church, of Baltimore, the largest Protestant church in Maryland, and the First Baptist church of Hopkinsville, Ky., which ranks among the leading churches of the South.

It was first his intention to go to Baltimore, but suffering from malaria contracted in South Georgia, his physician advised him to take a work less, taxing for the present. Hopkinsville pays a handsome salary and he is to go abroad again next year."

RESEMBLES A. C. DIXON.

The Raleigh News and Observer, of North Carolina, speaking editorially of him, says,

"He is strikingly like Rev. Dr. A. C. Dixon, of Boston—possibly a little more emphatic in gesture and not quite so pathetic in voice and manner. He impresses his hearers as a man of earnest, sincere honesty and full of faith in the gospel message."

The Dublin, Ga., Times makes this editorial notice of Dr. Jenkins.

"During the five years of Dr. Jenkins' pastorate here he has endeared himself to the people of Dublin by his earnest, consistent and able work, and the new man will not be satisfactory unless he measures up to the high standard set by Dr. Jenkins and his predecessors. As we stated before, the state of Dr. Jenkins' health was the only thing that compelled a change of field of labor, the relations between the pastor and people having always been of the most cordial nature, and even now the church is loth to give him up, though they know everything has been settled."

MEETING BEGINS SUNDAY.

Mr. Jenkins will begin a meeting at the Baptist church next Sunday and he writes that he has secured a singer from Chicago, from the Bible Institute, a man who was trained under Dr. D. B. Townner, to have charge of the music. He will use the world-famous song book now being used by Dr. Torrey and Mr. Alexander.

The wintry weather has stopped work on the church pavements, but all obstacles will be overcome and every member of the church has been invited to beat the church, to-morrow night from 7 to 10 o'clock to give Dr. Jenkins a hearty welcome. A great meeting is looked forward to. All Baptists in the city are invited.

Ambrose I. Thomas, President of Heart disease is thought to have caused his death.

Supporters of Senator McCreary are deriving some consolation out of the claim that carried 50 of the 83 legislative districts now represented by Democrats, and the intimation is strong that he may claim
the nomination upon that ground.
But the Senator himself is having nothing to say. He probably will accept the will of the popular vote.

Gen. Wm. Rufus Shafter, retired, died at the home of his son-in-law
in California Tuesday, aged 71 years.
He was a native of Michigan and attained the rank of Brigadier General in the civil war. He was commanding general at Santiago during the Spanish-American war.

The members of the companies B, C and D, of the twenty-fifth infantry, colored, recently dismissed by President Roosevelt as a result of the riotous disturbances at Brown-sville, Texas, on August 13, were formally dismissed at Reno, Nev., Monday. Some of them had been in the service 20 years and shed tears
when they gave up their guns.

Mrs. Esther Sumner Damon, said to be the last surviving widow of a soldier of the revolutionary war,
died this week at her home in Plymouth Union at the age of 93 years.
She was married in 1835 when she was 21 years old to Noah Damon,
who was then 75 years of age.
Damon served through the revolutionary war, having enlisted in 1775.

Mrs. Henry Dudeney the distinguished English writer, is the author of "Shoulder-Knot" the novel which opens the smart set. There is a story of real power, of real emotion, of real people. The scenes of the tale are laid in a remote hamlet in rural England, and four characters constitute practically all those who are vitaly concerned in the narrative.
How dramatically Mrs. Dudeney brings about her "unlooked-for climax, need not be told here; she writes in a masterly way, and along genuinely new, far from the beaten paths of current fiction. This novel closes another brilliant year of fictions in The Smart Set's history.
A great feature of the December issue is the appearance of the one-act play, "After the Opera," from the French of George Duquouis.

THE GREAT $1,000 COURSE

For the Tabernacle for the Season of 1906-7 Will be the Best of All.

BOOKLET NOW READY

Showing the Names of the Stars That Will Appear
During Season.

It gives us no little pleasure to state that the tabernacle course for next season is the very best ever put on in Hopkinsville. It is the most expensive course in the history of the present management and while lots of lecture course managers speak of $1,000 courses, if this course were bought at single rates the total cost would be $10.15.
Three years ago we cut the price of season tickets in half and the great increase in the volume of business has more than justified the move.
Three years ago we sold 400 season
tickets; last year we sold about 600,
and this year we must sell something like 1,000 season tickets to make the course a success. We are having little booklets prepared showing you what we will have this year; the order the attractions come; the dates and other information. Some of the merchants have helped us in getting out this book by advertising with us, and we hope you will remember this kindness and patronize
those who patronize us.

The first number on the course will be Edmund Vance Cooke, the American poet-humorist; No. 2 will be the Lula Tyler Gates Company,
the feature of the Bowling Green
Chautauqua last summer; No. 3, Frank Dixon will lecture on "How to Pluck the Goose." In the North and East they say this is better than the one he gave here last year; if so it is great. No. 4 will be Schildkret's Hungarian Orchestra, the finest played for in the business;
orchestra for Miss Alice Roosevelt's wedding and for Prince Henry two years ago. No. 5, Wallace Bruce Ambery, will give a most delightful evening. He was here years ago and those who heard him will be delighted to hear of his return. No. 6, Kellogg-Haines Singing Party, introducing scenes from English and comic opera. This beautiful novelty in the lyceum business, will please all who attend; they made good every date last season. You may expect a treat. No. 7, Edward F.

Elliot in "Masterpieces of Modern Comedy." He will give here either
"The Lion and the Mouse" or "The Dictator." He is on the Georgetown course this year for the seventh time. Must be good, don't you think? No. 8, The Dunbar Company. We have tried to get the Dunbars here for some two years,
but they came too high, but this year no expense has been spared, and this is a course that makes us feel proud.

The prices will be the same as the last two years—25c per attraction to season ticket holders, or $2.00 for the course of eight elegant numbers.
Now, we must sell something like 1,000 season tickets this year, and we want you to tell your friends about our course and co-operate with us, and help us make this the most successful of all the tabernacle courses. In this we cannot give information as we would like covering each number, as it would take up too much space. Get the booklet, look it, and show it to your friends, as it will convince anyone who sees it.
It is the finest array of talent ever offered a Hopkinsville audience.

COURT OF APPEALS

Affirms Judgment of Cristian
Circuit Court.

In the case of the Tennessee Central Railroad Company against John L. Brasher, guardian, the judgment of the Christian circuit court was sustained. The suit against the T.
C. road was brought by Mr. John L.
Brasher, as guardian for his slaughter. When the case was first tried the jury gave Miss Brasher damages in the sum of $500. The court thought the damages excessive, and set aside the jury's verdict and ordered a new trial. In the second trial the damages were fixed at $300. The railroad company then took the case to the Court of Appeals.

ALCOHOLIC POISON.

Sad Fate of Little Girl Who Drank Four Ounces of Whiskey.

Minnie Cannon, a six-year-old daughter of James Cannon, the Sixth street saloon keeper, died at the family home on Elm street Tuesday, from alcoholic poison. A bottle of whiskey holding eight ounces had been left on the mantel piece, about half filled with whiskey. The child climbed up on a chair and securing the bottle gave a younger child a sip
from it and then drank the rest.
This was about 9 o'clock Monday morning. The baby complained to her mother, who was in another room, that Minnie had taken all of the whiskey and wouldn't give her any. The child soon became unconscious and although she lived until 5 o'clock Tuesday morning she never regained consciousness. Physicians labored with her incessantly and tried every means that medical skill could suggest, but without avail.
The alcohol had poisoned her whole system and no relief could be given her.

Funeral services were held Tuesday at the residence and the interment took place in the Cannon burying ground north of town.

The Weather.

Two Liars Made One.

BY LEONARD W. CONANT.

(Copyright, 1906, by Daily Story Pub. Co.) The canoe drifted idly on the shimmering water of the bay and the man and the woman in it seemed more occupied with their own thoughts than with each other—although the girl, it might be noted, ever and anon gave the man a covert glance from beneath the long lashes, as though she were trying to read something in his gleamy face.

"Beautiful cruise, this," he grunted presently, making several vicious lunges with the paddle.

"The day could be a more perfect one," she replied with that feminine substitute for sweetness which savors so much of gall and wormwood.

He swept the canoe along with strong, measured strokes for several minutes, the strength of his strokes being reflected in the savage firmness of his lips.

"If you have become permanently tongue-tied you may take me home," she said, presently, pulling her shawl head-out of the water, where it had been clinging idly to the oar.

"I don't want to take me out next time—just for sociability's sake."

Silently he turned the bow of the craft toward the shore, and, standing with the paddle resting across his knees, he looked at her steadily and said:

"Look here, Ethel, what has happened since Wednesday? For the past three or four days a stone wall seems to have arisen between us. What is it? Tell me. For heaven's sake, let us have some sort of an understanding. If I have done anything to displease you, let me make amends. Only tell me what it is all about."

"You seem to have something on your mind yourself," she replied.

"Nonsense," he replied, sternly. "I am as I was a week ago, but I do not seem to be able to get within gunshot of you. Now I demand to know what is the matter."

"Oh, do you, indeed?" she replied, sweetly. "Quite dramatic, isn't it?"

He plunged the paddle into the water again savagely.

"There's that lovely new electric launch of O'Brien's just going in. I do wish you would take me down to the Point in it. They are going to have a lovely supper and a dance there to-night."

He looked at her with mingled reproach and dignity.

"You know perfectly well that O'Brien charges $2 an hour for the launch," he replied, "and that I could not afford to hire it for two hours—to say nothing about the eight or ten I would have to go to the Point and hold it over the dance. Besides, the supper tickets for tonight are $5 each. You forget that I am only a lawyer's clerk, although you act as if you understood it perfectly when you accepted my ring."

"That's right," she replied, looking him coolly in the face. "I did forget, and so you pardon."

"I see it all clearly now," he broke out passionately. "You are tired of being tied to a poor man and want your freedom. I was a fool to think that a girl like you could be contented to be tied to a poor devil on a salary of $15 a week and only the prospect of being advanced here and there hereafter a time and then only a chance of establishing a practice."

And he dug the paddle into the water with a vim that sent the little craft spinning shoreward.

"That is all very fine talk," she replied. "What does it mean?"

sure to be released. God knows I want you as ardently as ever I have. It is your own coldness and something that you have erected between us that led me to say what I did. I do not demand, now, that I want my own freedom, but I will not hold you to your promise if you desire to retract it."

"And supposing I do not?" she said, looking at him defiantly.

"Then all is well," he replied, eagerly.

"And you will be chivalrous and marry the girl with whom you have had a summer's flirtation," she said.

"Why not?" he replied, smiling. "If she will be the wife of a poor devil of a lawyer's clerk, who is not making any more, if as much, as she is?"

"You might have spared yourself that melodramatic scene," she replied, flushing hotly. "You have been deceiving me all summer, and you know it. The rich Mr. Wenham, with his automobiles and horses and summer place and house on the avenue, could well afford to take me to the Point in a hired electric launch if he were not engaged to a part."

"What do you mean?" she stammered.

"Oh, I happened to run across that dear Mrs. Perkins, whose domestic little farmhouse you board, and her command of the English language was scarcely sufficient to tell me of the splendid carriages and the fine furniture, and the poor soul was nearly distracted that you always went forth so modestly attired and only a motor launch of the finest kind from the hotel surreptitiously—about at great expense. I did not explain to her that you were putting yourself to all that trouble to fool a poor attorney's clerk and have a summer romance at the expense of a broken heart."

"The canoe swept up to the dock at this moment and he helped her out and dragged her into the boat's house without giving her a chance to answer, although he noted her flaming cheeks."

"You are," he said, as he came out, wiping his hands on his trousers. "Your work was as coarse as mine. It was all very well to live at a cheap boarding house, but when we met the Ostlers and the Orfiches and the Van Dolds, as we did at times at the hotel and they made such a fuss over you, I did a little investigating myself. So now that we have proven ourselves two liars, let's make it one."

And, being in the lee of the boat-house, he deliberately took her in his arms and kissed her and she shamelessly put both arms about his neck and returned his kisses.

Although Shot Through The Body.

The condition of Sylvester Robinson, the negro who is suffering from a wound in the body, is improved and the chances seem good for his recovery. Robinson, whose parents live near this place, was shot in Owensboro. The ball passed through the lower part of the left lung and was cut out of his back. It was claimed at Owensboro that he shot himself, in an attempt to commit suicide, but another report is that it was an accident. Robinson is at the home of his sister, on South High street.

$10,000 HOTEL

To Be Built at Salubria By People of Pembroke.

Big Improvements Going On
and Others to follow.

Our enterprising neighbors, the people of Pembroke, are always up to date. Considerable improvements are going on in different parts of the city, concrete sidewalks are being put down, etc., and others are under consideration. The most important thing now on hand is the erection of a $10,000 hotel at Salubria, about one and a half miles this side of the little city.

The sulphur spring at Salubria is one of the best in this section of the State. Its curative qualities have been known for half a century, and many years ago was in general use by the afflicted. Gradually, after the discovery of the health giving waters of Dawson and other springs, people began to forget Salubria and the spring has been used only by those living in the immediate neighborhood.

We hope that the people of Pembroke will carry out their plans in regard to building Salubria a watering place. When they start a thing they generally carry it through. If they build the hotel there is one thing that is sure to follow—an electric line from Hopkinsville to Pembroke. Such a road would doubtless be highly profitable to both cities and the running of cars between the two places every half hour would be a great convenience.

AMUSEMENTS.

Killroy and Britton's new play in which they will be seen at Holland's Opera House for one performance only on Thursday evening (this evening), styled "An Aristocratic Tramp," is from the pen of Lem Barker, author of "For Home and Honor," "A Quaker Wedding," "The Sinking City," and a dozen other very popular successes. "An Aristocratic Tramp" is far above the average tramp show in every respect, and contains more features in one single act than all other so-called tramp shows in four. The scenic effects are gorgeously correct, while the cast is made up of the very best dramatic talent New York affords. There are seven big specialty features in addition to the regular company, making the entire production second to nothing of this class traveling and their reception here should be a hearty one to say the least.

DePew-Burdette Stock Co.

The DePew-Burdette Stock Company which will make its first appearance at Holland's Opera House for one week, starting Monday, Nov. 19, is said to be the largest organization of its kind traveling. They hold the record of playing to the largest receipts ever known in the history of a popular priced attraction at Savannah, Ga., and Knoxville, Tenn. The list of plays to be produced here next week have been selected with care, and all the necessary scenery for their completeness will be used. On Monday night their engagement will open with the sensational comedy drama, "A Man of Mystery," on which occasion ladies will be admitted under the well known conditions. A special feature at each performance will be the specialties between the acts presented by a coterie of vaudeville artists.

Texas Panhandle Lands for Sale!

On Tuesday morning, Nov. 20th, I will conduct a party of Homeseekers and Investors to Amarillo, Tex., where they can buy the finest lands at a bargain, and from a firm of land agents that are endorsed by the banks of Amarillo.

The firm that I deal with is the Texas Realty and Immigration Company, of Amarillo, Texas, and is composed of Jas. B. Allensworth, of Hopkinsville, Ky., J. D. Wrathier, of Hickman, Ky., and F. V. Zimmerman, of Amarillo, Texas.

This firm sells land strictly for 5 per cent. commission and at the lowest prices that can be obtained from the owners and under no circumstances do they put the PRICE ON LAND AND PUT THE DIFFERENCE IN THEIR POCKET, as is so often done there by land agents, and thereby selling the land at UNREASONABLE PRICES.

This company does not operate EXPENSIVE CHARTERED CARS and then put the PRICE OF LAND UP and make the buyers pay for this great expense. They do not undertake to herd the people like sheep and prevent them from investigating the facts as to the price of land. They put you in touch with the owners of land and assist you in getting bargains.

They do not try to deceive you by selling you land away from railroads at higher prices than you can buy the same land for near Amarillo, Texas, with good improvements and near a town of ten thousand inhabitants, and growing rapidly, with five banks, four railroads and a town that will soon be a city. If you want to know more about this Company, write the Amarillo Bank & Trust Co., and the First National Bank of Amarillo, Texas.

You can get a rate of $25.75, good for thirty days with stopover privileges going and coming. For further particulars call or write me at Hopkinsville, Ky.

Polk Cansler.

A Chance to See the Southwest at Little Cost.

If you are looking for a new location in a growing country where land is cheap and fertile, where the climate is mild and healthful, where you can pay for a big farm in a year or two and live comfortably while you are doing it, you should investigate the country along the Cotton Belt Route.

Tell us where you want to go and we will plan the trip for you, tell you cost of a ticket from your home town, and save you unnecessary expense looking around.

You will want to know something about the country before you start. Let me send you the handsome illustrated books we have for free distribution. They will interest you.

PROGRESSIVE POLICY Will Be Adopted By Illinois Central Railroad.

Chicago, Nov. 12.—Under its new president, J. T. Harahan, the Illinois Central is about to enter on a vigorous and aggressive campaign for additional territory, which means increased business.

Mr. Harahan said to-day: "Although there will be no changes in traffic alliance nor operating methods the company is going to pursue a more progressive policy in the way of extensions into new territory and in the construction of lines and the extensions of lines already acquired and in operation. It is too early to make an official announcement of the company's plans in this respect, other than to say that the policy will be a progressive one."

Is your back like a barometer? Does it foretell every change of weather?

Does every cold settle on your kidneys? Bring aching, throbbing pains? Does it disorder the urine? The kidneys are calling for help. Use Doan's Kidney Pills. Guaranteed by Hopkinsville testimony.

C. B. Eades, of the firm of Eades & Davis, proprietors of the coal yard on Seventh street and the L. & N. R. R., and who lives at 402 East Seventh street, advised: "I saw Doan's Kidney pills advertised and so highly recommended by persons who had used them that I procured a box and gave them a thorough trial. I had suffered for a long time with a heavy pain across the small of my back, sharp and acute at times. When I caught cold it always settled in my back and there followed a weakness of the kidneys which was exasperating especially at night. I tried various remedies but none of them gave the satisfactory results that I obtained from the use of Doan's Kidney pills. I am pleased to say that they brought me great relief. I have recommended Doan's Kidney pills and will continue to do so to all my friends and acquaintances."

THE CANNIENRE

WILL NO LONGER BE A FEATURE OF FRENCH ARMY.

Mme. La Vivandiere About to Be Mustered Out—How Women Came to Be Attached to Army.

Mme. La Vivandiere is about to be mustered out of the French army. In other words, 1,673 women, soberly uniformed in scarlet-tipped blue, who have upheld the traditions of "the daughter of the regiment" since the days of '80, and so romantically contributed to French history, novels, and comic operas, will presently find themselves without employment. The government of the third republic has abolished the post of cantiniere.

Though women followed the armies of the Bourbons, the cantiniere may be said to have sprung into existence in the person of Felicia Loguet, the wife of a cuirassier of the revolution. At 67 she strapped a barrel of brandy on her hip and followed her husband to the frontier. She had "limbs like a Last Vivandiere of the French Army, panther, her arms were bare and knobby, her voice that of a beast of prey, shrill and broken with cries of tumultuous rage," yet she accomplished great deeds at Tonkin, leading and firing with her own hands a cannon at which all the detachment had been killed; at Hohenlinden, ball round away a finger while she gave a drink to two wounded hussars. "I have still nine left for my country," she said, and continued her work. At 71 she followed the grand army in its retreat from Moscow; wounded at Bautzen, she turned up again smiling during the campaign in France of 1814, sitting on the shaft of her cart, clothed in rags, her feet stuffed into cavalry boots, an officer's cap cocked over one eye, and wiping her glasses with a Russian flap. Still dead at last, after Waterloo, rather of rage than of old age.

During the strenuous, romantic days of the beginning of the century more than one cantiniere mated with marshal or peer or ambassador, and more emulated the heroic deeds of Felicia Loguet. The second empire was another brilliant page in the history of "the daughters of the regiment." Mme. Cros of the foot chausseurs of the Guard was decorated with the Croix de Solferino by the emperor's own hand, and the cantiniere of the First Zouaves, the Thirty-fourth regiment, and the Empress' Dragons all received the medal for the campaigns of 1861 and 1862.

In the "Terrible Year" Mme. Saurin of the Third Zouaves made herself famous by killing with her own hand a German officer who attempted her capture. She was badly wounded at Strasbourg, but lived to serve in the trying Algerian campaign of 1871. But the cantiniere of '70 will live in history rather for the tender, womanly devotion with which they tended the wounded under fire, than for deeds of savage and unfeeling bravery which characterized the exploits of their predecessors.

FLOWERS KEPT THREE MONTHS.

Poppies Picked May 31 Still Fresh Sept. 22 After Ice-Box Treatment.

Mons. Vercler tested the preservation of flowers by means of refrigerating apparatus, and he obtained extremely interesting results.

He exhibited before the society 'Horticulture some china peonies gathered 97 days previously. He put them back into the icehouse, and 41 days later several of them were still found to be in a fair state of preservation.

The experiments have been taken up again upon a larger scale, the peonies being cut with stems about 154 inches long and placed in glass bowls filled with water. The ends of the stems were trimmed every three weeks, and the water was renewed every month.

Under these conditions buds of china peonies gathered ready to open May 31 were still in pretty fresh condition September 23. Tree peonies gathered half open May 11 were drawn from the refrigerating cellar June 16. They remained open in the room for 35 hours.

The leaves hinder the preservation. It is better to preserve but one of them, that nearest the flower. It stays very green—Scientific American.
